

Boisali Biswas - Bio

Boisali Biswas is a mixed-media fibers studio artist, residing in West Bloomfield, MI. She is originally from India and obtained her undergraduate fine arts degree from the Visva-Bharati International University, founded by the Nobel Laureate Rabindranath Tagore. Her educational journey gave her a unique and profound experience of being in tune with nature. This has had a deep impact on her and continues to influence her work. She has always had a deep-rooted attachment to the traditional art forms of her culture-rich homeland. There is an underlying influence in her work from the captivating traditional patterns and techniques and stunningly rich array of colors of Indian art. Boisali has also had a lifelong appreciation for ethnic and indigenous arts from around the world. Living in this country for about 3 decades, she has adapted the Western styles, techniques and inspirations in her work. Those influences in concert with her background and fascinations has made her Art into a cauldron of multicultural assemblages that are unique and feast for the eyes. Boisali also has an MFA from Bowling Green State University, OH.
